

REMA JAMES SHARES HER PHOTOSTORY ABOUT ...

I took this sign board because it represents the entrance of the village, so that the visitors know where to stop. Village Council with support from the Conservation International together build this sign board. The sign board is to avoid any visitors doing unnecessary activities that bypass their culture and traditions on their title land.

My grandmother told me this plant is good for women to grow hair. To have a long hair, you have to bathe every day by putting it in the water that you are using to bathe.

When you look at the plant, it has no end or breakage.

This village sewing centre was built by the villagers in the year 2011. It was funded by the Government of Guyana. Village Sewing Machines are inside this building

Women who know to sew/ use sewing machine use this building, in this building they sew clothing such as uniforms, etc. But I can't say why they are not teaching the young women to use the machine so that when they are all gone, we will know how to sew also.
